

TORPEDOED SHIP HAD AMERICANS AS SAILORS

DEADLOCK COMES IN THE EUROPEAN WAR ZONES.

ENTENTE ALLIES AC- TIVE ON THE MAC- CEDONIAN FRONT.

This was a deadlock in the theatres of war. The successes reported, were comparatively unimportant. Heavy fighting continues on most of the fronts, especially in the Rumanian zone of operations where the soldiers are battling in thick fog and blizzards.

The Russian and Rumanian forces have rallied in a desperate effort to throw Von Falkenhayn's armies over the border into Hungary and at some points they have made progress.

Another engagement has developed in Dobrudja between Von Mackensen's army group and the Russo-Rumanian Serbian force, but Berlin reports the situation there unchanged.

In Macedonia the Serbians and French are attacking in concert. French troops occupied a village and the Serbians advanced slightly on the Tcherma river.

On the eastern front Turkish troops made a gain in Galicia at the point of the bayonet and the Germans took several mountain heights from the Russians.

Powerful counter attacks were delivered by the French on the Somme front last night, but they were unable to dislodge the Germans from Maissonette Farm.

Since October 10 Von Falkenhayn's Austro-German armies on the Transylvanian front have captured 151 Russo-Rumanian officers and 9,920 men.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Fifty-two survivors of the torpedoed freighter Marina have been landed.

Consul Frost at Queenstown reports that there was probably some fatalities among Americans on board. The United States embassy has begun an investigation into the sinking of the British freighters Marina and Rowanmore, both of which carried Americans in their crews when they were destroyed by German submarines.

Already the admiralty has turned certain facts over to the embassy for transmission to Washington.

There were 49 Americans on board the Marina and seven American citizens, five of them Filipinos, on the Rowanmore.

It has not yet been officially established how many Americans, if any lost their lives, but the fact that 70 of the Marina's crew were still missing indicates that there are probably some Americans among them.

ALLIES ADVANCE IN EAST.

Turks Report the Defeat of Russians in Rumania.

Paris, Oct. 31.—French troops have occupied Singerei on the Macedonian front, it was announced by the war office today in a communiqué on Balkan operations.

French and Serbian troops are now attacking in concert. On the Tcherma river the Serbians have made progress in their drive on Monastir but are meeting with sharp resistance from the Bulgarians and Germans.

The British aviators have bombarded the Greek city of Demir Hissa which is held by the Bulgarians.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The British war office today reported successful operations by the troops of the entente allies on the Saloniki front, issuing the following statement:

"The British who yesterday crossed the Struma at Neohori seized trenches on the east bank. The French, co-operating, captured the village of Yemaniah. In these operations the enemy suffered heavily in retreating from counter attacks."

CONSTANTINOPLE, (via Berlin) Sept. 12.—The Turkish war office today announced the defeat of Russian forces by Turkish troops at Oghnott in Armenia and near Dobrie in Rumania.

That portion of the official report dealing with the Rumanian front was as follows:

"Near Dobrie the enemy made a new sortie on September 8, but was again defeated by the Turks and their allies (Bulgarians)."

The report on the Caucasus and Persian operations follows:

A MAN OF PEACE AMONG THE KINGS OF BLOOD;
A MAN OF WISDOM IN A WORLD GONE MAD;
WHO TURNED ASIDE THE ONWARD RUSHING FLOOD;
THE GREATEST FRIEND OF PEACE THE WORLD EVER HAD;

AS HERO OF A GREATER FAIRER FAME,
WHO GAZING FORWARD THROUGH THE MISTS, DIVINED

Cox and Pomerene Tell of Issues Involved in the State and National Fights

By David W. Bowman.

Senator Alder Pomerene and Governor James M. Cox, heads of the state ticket and a pair of forceful campaigners, completed their joint tour of the fourth congressional district last night with an address apiece, and the impression made by each appears to have been extremely favorable. Fifteen hundred were present at the rally at Memorial hall.

Pomerene defended the national administration, recounted many of its beneficial measures and assailed the attitude of his senatorial opponent, Myron T. Herrick. In a vivid imitation of an auctioneer selling a seat in the upper house of the federal legislature, he dramatically expressed the growing conviction of the Ohio voters that the republican senatorial nomination was "sold to Myron T. Herrick for $52,000."

"Wall street is opposed to the Federal Reserve act, the Farm Loan act and the Postal Saving act. Mr. Herrick has consistently criticized all of these measures, including the saving department in national banks authorized by the Reserve act. Herrick and Wall street think along the same lines. He has been a student of their system. His sympathies in the banking 'business' are in perfect harmony with theirs, and their system has brought on one panic after another. Woodrow Wilson wrenched from their control the finances and credits of the country, and placed them under supervision of the federal reserve board for the benefit of the entire people. Before this system was adopted, we were constantly hearing of tight money markets and the inability of business men to get the necessary funds with which to conduct their business. One panic after another was brought on. Since the enactment of the federal reserve system, we have not even heard of the scarcity of money, though we have been conducting the greatest business in the history of the country, a volume so mammoth in its proportions that it staggers human belief."

the friends of the measure, and not by its enemies.

"Herrick objects to the Farm Loan act because he says it confers a special privilege upon the farmer in that its bonds and securities are made non-taxable. Mr. Herrick knows that mortgaged farm property under the laws of Ohio is double taxed, and if these securities were encumbered by a federal tax he knows that the system could not compete with the large banking institutions in the country. He has talked glitteringly of some wonderful system of rural credits that he has in his own mind. Has he reduced it to a concrete form? Does any living man know what this system is? He was invited by Senator Owen, the chairman of the banking and currency committee, to come before us and give his views. He did not come. He contented himself with making some general observations in the press, and a careful study of the law in connection with his criticisms will demonstrate that he has not analyzed its provisions, or does not understand them."

"He says that the farmers are not asking for a special privilege. If they are not they are different from Mr. Herrick. He didn't object to a high tariff being placed upon cars used in electric lights when he was the chief stockholder in the National Carbon company. He did not object to the deposit of government moneys in national banks without interest charge, but when it comes to conferring a privilege upon the farmer, he objects seriously."

Senator Pomerene also severely criticized Mr. Herrick's lavish expenditure of money to secure the senatorial nomination. He said: "Is the Ohio senatorship for sale? Years ago United States senators were bought and paid for. We thought that day was past, but the venal spirit of old raised its hoary head during the recent primary campaign and the senatorial nomination on the republican ticket was sold to the highest bidder. The successful candidate was not content to appeal to the people upon his own merits, but resorted to the old methods of using money for the purpose of influencing the result. $52,000 was expended, according to reports. The senatorial toga was placed upon the auction block and we heard the cries of the auctioneer, 'How much am I bid? $52,000, going, going, gone! Sold to Myron T. Herrick!'"

The senator discussed the eight-hour law and ridiculed the republican candidates for their efforts to side-step this issue after their standard-bearer had made an issue of it. He said that there were as many different varieties of republicans on this subject as Helms had pickles. He charged that his opponent Mr. Herrick, was trying to straddle both sides of it, and that he has failed to state whether he was for or against the Adamson law. He declared that when the history of the Wilson administration was written, his action in passing this law and thereby averting a nation-wide strike, would

ONE KILLED, 2 SHOT IN SALOON HOLDUP

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Richard Hatfield is dead and two men seriously wounded as a result of a battle with holdup men early today. The bandits killed Hatfield and wounded one man in a saloon holdup. While their victims were still lying on the floor, they held up another saloon, wounded the second man and escaped in the dark. The loot obtained by the robbers was less than $50.

Carnival of Fun and Frolic to Rule in Lima When Sun Goes Down

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the city of Lima tonight will celebrate Hallowe'en: "Therefore, I, Bailis Simpson, mayor of the city of Lima, earnestly recommend that everyone take part in the festivities planned and that all those participating observe the common laws of propriety; conduct themselves in a respectful manner toward their fellow men; and lend protection and safety to women and children as occasion demands."
(signed) BAILIS SIMPSON, Mayor.

MADRI GRAS PROGRAM.

The head of parade will move at 7:30 p. m. Procession will move south on West, from Elm. There are seven divisions in the parade. Vehicles and autos are barred from the square. Corporation exercises in square. Open-air ball on North West street.

The most elaborate celebration of Hallowe'en ever held in this city will occur this evening, when at 7:30 the mammoth parade, subdivided into seven divisions will proceed on its designated line of march marking the opening of festivities, which will continue throughout the remainder of the evening and will probably not wane until the early hours of Wednesday morning.

The entertainment committee of the Lima Chamber of Commerce has spent the past month preparing details of the big celebration and declares that persons taking part in the affair will not be disappointed. Even those that witness the festivities are promised plenty of excitement and amusement.

As it has been the custom of holding similar festivities on this day in former years there is little doubt but that artistic and grotesque costumes and masks will be numerous.

Charles Hatt and Joseph Shaffer, acting as king and queen respectively of the Mardi Gras, will be in the line light as rulers of auspicious occasion. Garbed in their royal robes and jewels and surrounded by their court, they will no doubt make quite an impression on spectators.

When the procession returns from the southern part of the city the king and queen will alight from their royal coach and take their seats on the throne that has been erected in the public square. Here coronation ceremonies will occupy the attention of the spectators.

CHIEF M'KINNEY ON STAND TELLS ABOUT THE WILD NIGHT RIDE

Trial of George Saxby on Riot Charges Continues in Court.

STATE RESTS TODAY

Mrs. Eley, Wife of Sheriff, Called to Witness Stand This Afternoon.

Tears welled up in the eyes of Mrs. Sherman E. Eley, wife of the sheriff, as she detailed the escape of herself and young sister, Cecil Kephart, her dying child Doris, her baby son and older son Kenneth from their home on the night of August 30 to escape the action of the mob, as she continued her testimony in court this afternoon.

Mrs. Eley told of threats of the mob to hang her brother-in-law, Albert Eley, deputy sheriff of Allen county, when they could not find her husband, who had not yet returned from Ottawa, where he had delivered the negro to Putnam county authorities.

S. W. Morton, of East Elm street, was the last witness called for the state. He testified Saxby was not drunk, but "pretty well topped off." The state closed their case at 1:22 o'clock.

Attorney Deete, for the defense, introduced a motion, asked and was granted time for argument of what he claimed was the defective indictment brought against Saxby. The jury was excused and for an hour or more, Deete placed his arguments before the court.

McKinney's Testimony.
R. H. McKinney, chief of police of Lima, added largely to the chain of evidence which the state is endeavoring to weave around George Saxby, indicted by the grand jury for attacking and officer, with the purpose of lynching a prisoner. Chief McKinney occupied nearly the entire morning with his testimony.

Chief McKinney told the presence of George Saxby in the county jail on the night of the riot and how when he exhibited his badge to him and told him to leave the jail, he refused to go. McKinney testified that he was close enough to Saxby, by his breath, to tell that he was inflamed with liquor.

When he barred the jail door, Chief McKinney said Saxby replied: "You go to hell, you can't stop us tonight." He said that was before the return of Sheriff Eley from Ottawa, where he had turned over Daniels.

McKinney said he was in jail to try and protect other colored men confined there. "Hang the negro, bring out the other negroes," cries against the sheriff "You haven't got company C with you now," were some of the ejaculations of the crowd to which Chief McKinney said he listened. He said these threats grew gradually, until "hang or lynch the sheriff, if he won't tell," filled the air.

The rope which was in the jail on the night of the riot, after identified as being found in the sheriff's home, then used as a means of attempted lynching of the sheriff, was exhibited to the jury this morning at state exhibit "A."

Mrs. Eley, Miss Cecil Kephart and Chief McKinney declared they believed the rope shown the jury to be the same as that used on the night of the riot, by the mob. It was shown that George Saxby was in the jail at the time the rope was there.

Tells of Wild Ride.
Chief McKinney, on the witness stand, told of the treatment of the sheriff with the rope when attempt lynching was made at the telegraph pole at Main and North streets, how he was unmercifully thrown across the truck of the White Mountain creamery company and hurled to the Pennsylvania tracks on Elizabeth street, where the truck refused to work.

Chief McKinney declared he was the only apparent friend of the sheriff who accompanied him on the trip to Ottawa. When the truck gave out, the sheriff was lifted into a waiting automobile, driven by a slim man, the chief said. But when this car refused to work, too, he was removed into the car driven by Addison Hooker and his wife. The chief hung on the running boards to the back. Hooker, unable to secure coal, climbed a dead tree to saw off limbs for fuel. A branch broke and Hooker tumbled to the ground. At first physicians thought his back was broken but he will recover. Now Saxby is in a hospital, where it's warm.

YOUNGSTOWN—Hallowe'en and the high cost of keeping warm today hit Powell Sobel right square in the back. Sobel, unable to secure coal, climbed a dead tree to saw off limbs for fuel. A branch broke and Sobel tumbled to the ground. At first physicians thought his back was broken but he will recover. Now Saxby is in a hospital, where it's warm.

Henry G. Wemmer, chairman of chief McKinney declared. He stated that he thought the mob would break all the bones of the sheriff and tear him to pieces when they threw him on the truck. Because this was offered as the chief's suggestion, it was afterward ruled out by the court.

He told of the mob being excited, violent and in condition where they wanted blood. He set five minutes as the time the sheriff was at the pole, before he disclosed the whereabouts of the negro and the ride to Ottawa was undertaken. McKinney stated about 1,000 were around the pole then and 30 or 40 piled on the truck where the sheriff was thrown. Some of the large number seemed to know where the colored man was. McKinney went on to say "and they did not want to injure the sheriff, apparently. But those who did not know, were clamoring for him," he told the jury.

Leete Makes Swift Fight
Witnesses throughout the morning were largely interlarded with by objections upon the part of Saxby's counsel, William H. Leete. When he interposed this morning, Prosecutor Barr said, "This is awful tiresome. I am getting tired of being objected to, almost before I open my mouth. I hate to be objected to for breathing."

"Yes, and you'll get more tiresome as you get through," Attorney Leete told the prosecutor. Judge Bailey said the court was in perfectly good humor this morning and he must insist they hurry along and dispense with personalities. But Leete is fighting every inch of the way and if any man is working hard to acquit a prisoner at the bar, then attorney William H. Leete is doing so for George Saxby.

When court opened this morning, Patrolman Thomas was called to the stand and cross examined. He furnished little new testimony, having been such of the night of the riot with Officer Eberle, whose testimony he substantiated.

Attorney Roy asked that the testimony of Roy Bowersock who said yesterday afternoon that Saxby said to the sheriff "d— you, you haven't got an tin willies to help you out this time," the testimony of Motor Cop Eberle who said that Saxby kept open and regular. "Foley Cathartic Tab" is an first aid o good health. Do not gripe. H. F. Fortkamp.

The court refused to strike out any of this testimony and allowed the jury to consider it when they reached the room to deliberate on the case.

George F. Barrett of 319 North West st., probation officer of Allen county, was called to the stand and testified he was in the Elks home between 10 and 10:30 o'clock on the night of the riot and that when he ordered Saxby out of the home, because he was not a member of the organization and not entitled to be in the club house, Saxby replied, "I don't have to go out of here." He said Saxby went up the stairs, to where the sheriff was in hiding on the second floor.

Positively Identifies Saxby
Although she had never seen Saxby before and not since, Miss Cecil Kepkark, 18-year-old sister-in-law of Sheriff Eley, testified that George Saxby was the man who entered the sheriff's residence on the night of the riot and said: "Make the women tell, they know where the nigger is." She said he also remarked, "they would not get the nigger, they would take the sheriff."

Mrs. Eley, wife of Sheriff Sherman Eley, was on the stand when court recessed at noon today. Mrs. Eley told of the night of the riot and how she was watching at the death-bed of her small child, Doris Eley, who was sick. She said as the sheriff returned and entered the front way of home, he told the mob of the condition of the child. After a word with her, she said he was gone.

She told of how George Saxby looked into the room where the dying child lay and was one of those who was rummaging the house over, going from room to room and up and down the stairway and halls.

Prosecutor Ortha Barr stated at noon today that by night the state will rest their case and that the defense will probably take up their head of the trial. The case will hardly reach deliberation of the jury before the very last day of the week.

The Rev. Warren J. Dunham, attorneys, grand army men, women accompanied by their husbands and in couples, farmers and people from every walk of life today crowded the court room to listen at the state's witnesses tell of the happenings of that night on the thirtieth day of August.

Yesterday's Session.
Frank Eberle, motor patrolman, residing at 215 Miller avenue, was next to last witness called by the state yesterday afternoon. He testified that while standing on the sidewalk near enough to reach George Saxby with his hand, Saxby yelled out, "Let's go over and get the — and string him up." Eberle said this followed a statement by another person that the sheriff was in the Elks' home. He also stated Saxby started for the Elks' home from his place on the sidewalk in front of the sheriff's home.

Roy Bowersock, who succeeded in splitting Sheriff Eley to the Elks' home, where he was later found in hiding from the mob, gave important evidence for the state. Court held over later than usual last night, in an effort to hurry the case along.

John W. Beall, who was on witness stand at 2:30 o'clock yesterday, was used principally by the state in describing to the jury the interior of the Elks' home, where the struggle to get the sheriff took place. Mr. Beall described in detail the building.

Harry O. Bentley, who was in the Elks' home the night of the riot, probably furnished the most damaging testimony for the state of the afternoon.

"I was sitting" in the Elks' home, when I heard the tramp of many feet on the main floor. I went to that floor and entered into conversation with Mrs. John W. Beall and Mrs. William Nye, the latter the wife of the steward of the club, who were standing near the desk.

"I had a perfectly plain view of the marble stairway. I heard the scurrying down the stairs and when at the landing, I saw the crowd, pushing and dragging the sheriff. At the landing the sheriff tried to hang on to the railing there, there was a brief halt, but his hold was broken because of the slippery condition of the marble construction, he was pushed right along and hustled down the stairway and out the front door."

Ask by Prosecutor Barr if he saw the defendant, George Saxby, on the scene, Attorney Bentley said Saxby was leading the way for the men who were pushing and dragging the sheriff, was frantically waving his hands and arms, as if to hurry the crowd on down the stairs, but that while he was sure Saxby was saying something, because of the motion of his lips, he could not and did not understand what he said.

John W. Beall, in his testimony, had declared that as many persons had hold of the sheriff as could catch hold of him or his clothing at any place.

During the afternoon, at the instance of Attorney Leete. Judge Bailey instructed the jury they should not consider the cries of the mob, or any member thereof, unless it concerned the actions of Saxby or he had a part thereof, as proved beyond a doubt by the state.

Saxby is taking a keen interest in the trial. When the state produces damaging testimony, Saxby sits with concentrated features, but when the ruling of the court or a good move is made by his attorney and conceded, a smile is upon his face. Occasionally he looks back into the audience to catch a view of spectators at his back.

GENUINE—BUT SURE.
RILIOUSNESS, sick headache, sour stomach, gas, bloating, constipation, dyspepsia—all these distressing consequences of retaining a mass of undigested and fermenting food in the stomach are avoided if the new "Foley Cathartic Tab" is first aid o good health. Do not gripe. H. F. Fortkamp.

LEONARD SUSTAINS INJURIES IN FALL

Treacherous Track Throws Unfortunate Man to the Street.

Edward Leonard, sustained several painful scalp wounds this afternoon when he was thrown from a wagon in which he was riding and precipitated to the pavement. The accident occurred near the corner of Pine and Vine streets when Leonard attempted to get out of the path of an approaching street car. The wheels of the wagon caught in the track and caused the wagon to partly turn over throwing the occupant to the street.

Spectators who witnessed the accident immediately called Whitley's ambulance and the injured man was moved to the City Hospital, where according to the latest reports is resting easily. Physicians in charge of the case are of the opinion that nothing serious will result from the injuries unless further examination would disclose concussion of the brain.

SINKING OF BRITISH FREIGHTER NO CAUSE FOR COMPLICATIONS

Germany to Conduct Warfare on Rules Laid Down by United States.

Washington Awaits Definite information as to Latest Incidents.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—In connection with the sinking of the steamers Marina and Rowanmore, Count Johann von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, this afternoon issued the following announcement exclusively for the International News Service: "There is no intention on the part of the German government of changing its submarine policy. Germany has every intention of keeping her pledge to the United States and there must be some explanation (of the sinking of the Marina). The boat must have tried to escape."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The attacks by German submarines upon the marine and the Rowanmore is believed in official circles today to be the opening of German submarine warfare on a larger scale than ever before attempted. The state department has received confidential information that the German navy has set about to destroy every merchant vessel bound for an English port.

There is not, however, to be a general return to "ruthless" submarine warfare. The work of destruction of the under-water war vessels is to be conducted generally in accordance with the principles of international law as upheld by the United States government. All violations of law by submarine commanders will bring severe and immediate punishment by the German government.

Further investigation was being made today by state department representatives to determine the status of the steamer Marina, sank with the reported loss of a number of American citizens. The status of the Rowanmore is accepted as definitely established as a merchantman and the attack as in violation of Germany's pledges to the United States. If final official substantiate the reports of Consul Wesley Frost that American lives have been endangered or lost by an act in violation of the international law, it is generally accepted that demands for an immediate apology and for punishment of the submarine commander will be made upon the German government by President Wilson through the state department. It is not doubted that the demands will be complied with without hesitation. A categorical apology and severe punishment for the submarine commander will follow.

With official information apparently making it clear that international law was violated when the Rowanmore's crew was shelled after taking to the lifeboats, state department officials here began taking the first steps toward making a diplomatic issue of the case. The American embassy in Berlin already is seeking information unofficially. Plans were laid here today for a formal request from the German government for the return of the ship.

No demands will be made by the United States until after the German official account of the attack has been received and compared with the British report.

Further investigations are being made of the attack upon the horse transport Marina, sunk with the reported loss of a number of Americans.

Ambassador Page in London has been requested by the state department to determine positively and as quickly as possible whether the Marina was in the admiralty service, as was indicated by Consul Frost in his first report from Queenstown on the sinking of the vessel.

In face of unofficial denials, state department officials today were of the belief that the vessel was in the service of the British government, either as a chartered merchantman or as an admiralty transport. Should either case prove to be true no protest would be made because of the sinking of the vessel, even though Americans lost their lives when the vessel went down.

HUGHES' MANAGERS ARE STAMPEDED BY CAMPAIGN OUTLOOK

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The New York Telegram, the evening edition of the New York Herald (Independent) concedes that Hughes' campaign managers have been literally stampeded by current political developments, indicating President Wilson's re-election. One article is headed "Republicans in Panic as Campaign Nears End," and says: "Although every effort is being made to conceal the state of feeling that prevails at republican national headquarters it is known that the campaign managers are bordering on a panic, and so desperate do they feel today that they are at a loss as to which way to turn."

"This was the admission of one of the most active members of the republican national committee's campaign committee. Every preconceived arrangement for the closing of the campaign has had to be changed, and the 'S. O. S.' signs that are coming in from every republican state in the middle-west have the campaign managers in despair."

The telegram also features another article setting forth that at least one-third of the New York progressive vote is for President Wilson. Upon this subject it says: "That 24 per cent of the progressives in this state will vote for President Wilson instead of for Charles E. Hughes was the admission made today by one of the most prominent progressives in the city working in the interest of Mr. Hughes."

"He said a canvass of all the enrolled progressives in the state showed that that proportion was for the president. The fact was a decided shock to him he said, as he had no idea the percentage would be so large."

Commenting on the "Drift to Wilson" which is sweeping the country the New York Evening Post (Independent) offers editorially the following explanation: "I can think of several reasons why I might vote against Wilson," said a puzzled independent the other day. "But I can't think of one why I should vote for Hughes." This puts compactly the extraordinary nature of the presidential campaign.

"This fact has been the great weakness of the Hughes campaign and it has been the more glaring as his speeches and the days have slipped by."

ROMANCE STARTING IN PIE DOUGH ENDS IN DIVORCE COURT

Wife, Who Is Sick, Also Enters Suit to Secure Alimony.

Although he snatched her from the duties of making pies in the kitchen of her home on July 3, 1915, to secure a license before the court house closed in Toledo, Genevieve Morton's love for Ralph Morton, of Lima, has cooled since then, according to a petition of Morton, filed in court late yesterday afternoon.

Morton was insistent they must be married to celebrate the occasion on Independence day. He reached her home, going down from Lima, and they had but a few minutes in which to reach the court house and secure the marriage license before closing time.

Taking her hands from the pie dough, she was hustled into an automobile and the marriage license was issued just a minute before closing time.

In his petition in court, Morton says that following their marriage she refused to live with him and still refuses to do so, would not allow him to remain with her in Toledo, nor come to Lima with him, he says, has disregarded him and paid in attention to him whatsoever, he says.

He says she is employed as a stenographer in Toledo and disregards any home duties. Morton is the son of S. W. Morton, of 319 East Elm street.

Mrs. Vernon has entered court to secure alimony from her husband, George O. Vernon, whom she claims, abandoned her on October 2 of this year, leaving their home at 667 South West street. She says she is ill and under the care of a doctor and has no means of support, although he is earning $95 a month as flag-man for the Lake Erie & Western railroad. The couple were married on January 16, 1913.

ROTARIANS ENJOY RARE HALLOWE'EN ALL OF THEIR OWN

Surprises Given to All, Particularly Some of the Old Timers.

Distinguished Guests From Home and Abroad Are Entertained.

Members and guests of the Lima Rotary club enjoyed a genuine Halloween celebration Monday evening. The evening's entertainment began with six o'clock dinner at the Lima House. At the conclusion of the dinner the party was transported in closed busses to a secret rendezvous.

So well had the committee in charge planned the transfer that but few realized where they were. Escorted to a basement cavern, lighted dimly by candles the crowd were anxiously expectant as to what would take place.

That they were surprised and at the same time highly entertained will be vouched for by anyone present. The program was unique, and filled with surprises. Even genial John Blattenberg had one "put over" on him.

Despite the fact that there were numerous counter attractions, the attendance was a record breaker with 104 members and thirty guests. Among the guests present were George Chisholm, Cleveland; W. E. Woodard, vice-president of the Lima Locomotive Works; C. A. Hiatt, Glenn C. Webb, O. H. Beecher, Harry L. Pebb, S. Fishel, Paul Ashton, Stewart Frey, Wilbur W. Smith, M. U. Basinger, F. S. Butler, J. C. Sweeney, Elmer Hay, J. W. Halfhill, Carl Jensen, D. B. McPherson, W. O. McCullough, F. P. Sevier, Julian Wise, Wallace King, Frank Bentz, Marion Vermillion, H. C. Hayne, E. F. Sayers, Gordon Longheard, Herb Rudy, Bailis Simpson, Jolley, and Dr. William of Illinois.

INFANT BURNED.

The general services over the body of Alva Mary Carbone, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carbone, 1207 1/2 South Main street, who died last evening, 11 hours after her birth, were held this morning at St. John's Catholic church. The Rev. John Mizer officiated. Burial was made at Gethsemane.

THE FARMER'S TESTIMONY.

I've just paid my December tax, And now I cuss myself To think that I took bunk as facts And laid Cox on the shelf.

When Willis said the Warnes law The farmer's substance spent And other things that now look raw I voted for the gent.

And now my tax, by his laws made Is fifty more per cent If this keeps up I'm sore afraid I'll have to move in rent.

He said the state was bankrupt, too, And read us from a book Of bunk he loudly said was true; As I was green, it took.

And now 'tis proved that Cox did plunk Eleven millions down; They bought with interest on that chunk An office block in town.

The theme o'er which with dusty d'n Frank Willis raved, and swore He'd gather every office in Behind the state house door.

And now the figures show, this year, The surplus is all gone; Frank B's economy, 'tis clear Will put the state in pawn.

They say that Willis is a joke; Well, then the joke's on us; He got the pig, we held the poke And found it full of muck.

Have you seen your December tax? Tax figures talk as loud As Willis can, and they tell facts That make the governor's shroud.

For now where'er you look you see The farmers crouched in docks; They tell what their year's tax will be.

Dickinson, Former Member Taft's Cabinet, for Wilson and Tells Reasons Why

(By Jacob M. Dickinson, receiver of the Rock Island System and Secretary of War Under President Taft)

The indications point strongly and almost conclusively to the re-election of Mr. Wilson. The trend has been steadily that way for some time and I foresee nothing to check it. His speeches have taken deep hold upon the people and have vastly increased his strength.

This strength is not based on personal popularity—such as that of Clay or Blaine—but upon his championship of principles of government which appeal to the people at large and win their support.

The speeches of Mr. Hughes have not strengthened his candidacy. His personality, abilities and character are beyond question and his strength as a speaker is of a very high order. These could not compensate for the death of effective political issues. His initial attempt to raise to the dignity of national issues in a presidential campaign a change in an ambassadorship and the dropping of a man from a minor office fell flat. The people knew that it has always been recognized as proper to have our representatives at foreign capitals in full political harmony with the administration.

But a few had ever heard of the officer in question and probably not one in a thousand now knows his name or the office he held.

The main burden of his speeches has been attacks on the foreign policies of the administration and all of these are based upon his judgment after the fact as to what should have been done. This is supported mainly by prophecies as to what would have happened if a different course had been pursued.

He asserts that a more vigorous policy in respect of the Lusitania would have imposed effective restraint on Germany without provoking war. This is mere theory and is incapable of demonstration. The course outlined by Mr. Hughes might have produced war. No one knows or ever will know.

Like prophecies are made in respect of Mexico, with the same inconclusiveness. Such ex post facto attacks, based upon unsupported opinion, do not arouse deep or abiding interest.

On the whole, the people are satisfied with our present condition. In a frenzy of political discussion, some may be worked up to a point of intellectual indignation over the portrait of the attitude of the United States on account of its foreign policies, but no one is unhappy under a sense of loss of national dignity. The hearers do not take home with them an abiding conviction that our country has seriously suffered in its standing among nations. It is said that we are actually at war with Mexico, that this has been decided by the judge advocate general as a matter of law, and, therefore, the claim that Mr. Wilson has kept the nation out of war is false.

The people, when they speak of war, do not concern themselves about a war whose existence can only be discovered by a lawyer. The kind of war that concerns them is one where armies are clashing and their people are being killed and wounded. In the sense in which they dread war, we are at peace with the world. No one who does independent thinking would say that the administration of Mr. Wilson has been perfect, that no mistakes had been made. That could not be truthfully said in respect of any administration. We do not try ourselves by any such standard. No sensible person expects it of men or governments.

If Mr. Wilson had made no mistakes, he would be the greatest man the world ever had. He himself said that he had made made mistakes. No one would respect him if he claimed infallibility. No administration in our entire national life has had to deal with so many important questions.

Our political conditions are so complicated, there are so many great questions involved in our national life, that it is rare that one dwells the others in comparison so as to make a national election turn mainly on its solution. This was nearly, if not entirely, true in the campaign for free silver, and at times the tariff has been the pivotal issue.

There is no such issue in this campaign. If so, Mr. Hughes and his advisers have not discovered it, for they have pretty nearly boxed the compass to find something upon which to found appeals from day to day.

Therefore, when so many questions are involved, the election will not turn on the belief of some that a mistake was made as to some political matter, and of others that a mistake was made as to some other particular matter, and that such matter should outweigh the whole, but whether the resultant of all that has been done during these four eventful years leaves our nation strong, with no heartbreaking international crisis, existing or impending, and our people happy and prosperous. To this there can be but one answer by proclamation of the farmer, the laborer, the employes, the manufacturers and the capitalists.

They will look to the actual condition and not to a theory, and, in accounting for it, cannot ignore the facts that we are actually at peace with the world, and that the democratic party, under Mr. Wilson's leadership, which, in effectiveness, has not been surpassed in our political history, has enacted more constructive legislation than was ever enacted within the same period; that this legislation has received general approval; and that it has directly and potentially contributed to the general condition that now prevails.

HELD AT VAN WERT FOR INVESTIGATION

George Lazor, Bohemian, arrested Saturday by Detective George Allen of the Pennsylvania railroad on a charge of train riding at Van Wert, is being held in the Van Wert county jail pending an investigation as to his sanity and information in regard to a shooting scrape which he claims to have been a principal in Youngstown.

Lazor is the same man that jumped from the window of a fast moving passenger train on the Pennsylvania railroad near Lima, the middle of last week. He claims that he fractured his shoulder in the jump.

The funeral of Gus Dillon was largely attended here at this place last Sunday. Dillon died at the Lima hospital last Friday night from an illness of a few days of paralysis. He was a former resident of this place.

COMMITTEE RILED AT INSINUATION OF AN UNFAIR REPORT

Deny Socialists Hint About
Explanation of Phone Ordinance.

Merely Stated Facts and
Law for Voters, Says
W. B. Richie.

That the statement issued Sunday by the socialist committee backing the municipal ownership of telephones, insinuating that the explanation committee appointed by Mayor Simpson was biased and prejudiced, will prove a boomerang is the latest development in the controversy. Members of the committee resent the implication and staunchly maintain that they limited their remarks to a fair, just and logical explanation of the entire matter.

On reason why the motives of the committee have been attacked by the Blank contingent appears that the letter to the mayor was not given out in its entirety. Mayor Simpson believing that the introductory remarks were not of sufficient importance to demand that. It now appears, however, that the introductory paragraph sheds a little light on the subject.

Speaking for the committee this morning, Attorney Walter B. Richie stated that the members resented the implication that the law was in any way misinterpreted, his reasons being that article 12, section 18, of the amendments adopted as the new constitution of Ohio in 1912 has specific statement on the subject, which is quoted in the explanation. "The city can issue a franchise to secure the mortgage bonds based on the property," said Mr. Richie, "but only the portion of the obligation which exceeds the legal limit of bonded indebtedness can be so secured. All that comes under that deadline is the city's obligation and must be backed by the treasury, nothing more."

This makes it appear that there is a costly "joker" in the proposed ordinance. The loophole is there, as far as that goes, and the only question becomes this: If the socialist ordinance gets the necessary two-thirds and prevails, for how much of the bond issue used to purchase this $950,000 plant will the city have to stand guarantor without any security other than the city treasury?

The statement made to the mayor by his explanation committee, including the introductory part, is as follows:

To the Hon. B. H. Simpson,
Mayor of the City of Lima, O.
Dear Sir:

Acknowledging the confidence reposed as you in the discharge of your duty, interpret house bill number 638,103 Ohio Laws, page 831, appointed us, as a committee, to prepare an explanation of the proposed measure or ordinance, a certified copy of which, furnished by Messrs. Edwin Blank, Scott Wilkins, E. O. McPherson, S. L. Newman and E. B. Lewis, is now on file with the city auditor of said city, and upon which ordinance a vote of the people is contemplated at the November election to determine whether or not the voters of the city of Lima, Ohio, favor the acquisition by the city by condemnation or otherwise, the entire system of telephones owned and operated by the Lima Telephone and Telegraph company within the corporate limits of said city, including all the property, grants, franchises, rights and claims of every kind, character and description, and immediately after the passage of this ordinance the council and the mayor of the city of Lima, shall serve notice in writing upon the Lima Telephone and Telegraph company of the intention of the city of Lima to purchase the system of telephones owned and operated by the Lima Telephone and Telegraph company within the corporate limits of said city, including all the property, grants, franchises, rights and claims of every kind, character and description, as provided by law, as provided in section one (1) of said ordinance, we beg to say that we realize the trust imposed and as we construe the section of the statute under which our appointment is made, we are not called upon to present an argument or to present our views for or against the ordinance, but simply and within the statute limit of three hundred words, make such explanation of the same as we may be able to if possible, assist the voter in coming to a conclusion as to his duty, to the end that the interests of the public may be the best subserved.

This is important as a vote for or against the proposed ordinance is a vote for or against it in its exact terms. The total votes of those voting upon this question adopts or rejects the ordinance as it stands, and is the voice of the state's highest authority on the proposition just as submitted.

With this sole thought in view, we present the following as an explanation of the ordinance proposed by Edwin Blank and others for the purchase of the property of the Lima Telephone and Telegraph company within the city of Lima, Ohio.

Explanation.
Section one of the ordinance provides for the purchase of the entire property of the company within the corporate limits of the city with no provision as to that portion of the company's property lying outside the corporate limits.

We make no comment, we state the fact.

Section two provides that after the acquisition of the property of the company "within the corporate limits", the city shall operate the same as a municipal owned utility.

Section three provides that payment shall be made by the issuance of bonds beyond the authorized limit, which bonds shall be secured only by the property and revenues of the company.

It is evident the fact was overlooked that the legislature has enacted no law, nor has the city adopted a home rule charter, to make operative sections four, five, six, eight and twelve of article eighteen of the constitution.

The constitution recognizes such a mortgage as the city's debt, but when by law authorized to make such purchase, it shall not be liable for bonds beyond the excess of the bond limit of the city. The company will be entitled to payment in cash and the city must sell the bonds as other bonds to complete the purchase of so much of the company's property as lies within the corporate limits including the central plant and phones approximating seven thousand.

The lines, poles and about nine hundred and fifty phones are beyond the corporate limits, and not embraced in the proposed purchase.

It is not our province to give an opinion as to the power of the city to enforce the purchase of that part of the property within the corporate limits, when there is no provision in the ordinance for the purchase of that outside.

Respectfully submitted,
Lima, Ohio, October 30, 1916.
WALTER B. RICHIE,
M. S. BOWSER,
T. K. JACOBSON.

After All.
Although the late Henry James, the American novelist, lived abroad, he was very proud of his fellow countrymen. One evening at the Athenaeum club in London Mr. James dined with Joseph Chamberlain. Mr. James praised the English highly during dinner. He praised their dress, their manners, their country life and even their climate. Mr. Chamberlain listened to this praise attentively. At the end he said, expecting a further compliment for Great Britain: "Mr. James, if you were not an American, what would you want to be?" "If I were not an American," Mr. James answered promptly, "I'd want to be one."

G. O. P. ADVERTISING

The Republican party must be getting desperate. Not only are the discreditable methods and canards of the last ten days indicative of this, but to and behold Chairman Wilcox has jumped to full page advertising. When he can't get enough orators to present his claims, when the crowds will not turn out to hear G. O. P. spellbinders knock the child labor bill and the Adamson bill and the federal reserve act, and the rest of the good works of President Wilson's administration, when the public will not pay attention to the high priests of protection, Wilcox spends several hundred thousand dollars to secure the public into voting for Hughes, Hypocrisy and Hypocrisy.

Truly, the G. O. P. must be getting scared. The advertising matter which you read in the local newspapers is appearing and over the United States. The metropolitan sheets and rural weeklies in suburban backwoods sections. Any man who realizes the cost of advertising during the present paper shortage knows that the cost for a week will run well past the million dollar mark.

Wall Street is standing, for it have you seen the list of G. O. P. campaign contributors? Here are the leaders:

PUBLIC FORUM

THE FRUITS OF MR. WILSON'S ADMINISTRATION.

Editor Times-Democrat
"The tree is known by its fruits." So also the value of man's deeds are to be measured by their worth to society. What is the sort of fruit borne by the present administration? Judge Robert S. Lovett, president of the Union Pacific railroad, says: "And let us not forget what we owe President Wilson for the present unexampled industrial prosperity of the country."
President Underwood of the Erie railroad, says: "The reserve banking act has given stability to business." That is to say that it will prevent financial panics. The republicans for years told us that an elastic currency was necessary to the transaction of business. This act provides an elastic currency, yet Herrick tells us it should be repealed. The farmer, the merchant and the wage earner must have "business stability" to be prosperous. It emancipates business from the domination of Wall street and gives it a fair field.
The Rural Credit and Farm Loan act gives the farmer the same credit facilities which are enjoyed by other business men.
The federal trade commission act is one of the greatest importance. It is in the interest of the public and the business man, the employer and the employee, the distributor and the consumer.
The Clayton bill prevents monopoly and makes clear what trusts may not do. The republican party demands a change.
The income and inheritance tax law relieves the property owner of a great burden and puts the tax upon big incomes and large fortunes.

where it works no hardships. Mr. Hughes and the Old Guard opposed the income tax.
Good roads are an immense advantage to the farmers. They facilitate the marketing of their crops, minimize the wear and tear of the land, and economize time. Seventy-five million dollars appropriated for this purpose. It is one of the greatest aids to agricultural development.
Under President Wilson's administration the Payne Aldrich tariff schedules were revised downward. It will be recalled that Mr. Taft, although approving the bill, made a statement that it was "indispensable." The act preventing a strike of railway brotherhoods prevented a nation wide calamity. On this point, J. P. Griffin, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, a life-long republican, says: "A railroad strike would have resulted in more harm to the civilian population than would have been the case had the country gone to war." The president has always been in favor of an 8-hour work day.
Under President Wilson's administration a law to ere to an adequate merchant marine has been passed. An immense appropriation for naval construction has been made, and bids for building battleships were recently opened at Washington. Construction of war vessels has already been begun.
The grain standard law assures the honest grading of wheat, and will prevent fraud. The law authorizing the department of agriculture to license bonded warehouses for the storage of grain and making warehouse receipts negotiable will prove of great benefit to the farmers.

DIFFICULT RUN.
It is not generally known that Daniel Webster was not only a great trout fisherman. And as all trout fishermen know, the one is no rarer than the other. In other kinds of fishing, tackle, bait and patience will accomplish almost anything; but your trout fishermen must have an inborn talent for reading the face of the stream and presenting the fly.
This deep skill had Webster, and his favorite place for exercising it was a stream not more than fifteen miles from Washington, known as Difficult Run. There is a letter extant from the great orator in which he tells just how he succeeded in taking a big reel full of large trout from Difficult Run, and in glow and passion this account of the day's sport is the equal of any of his great addresses.
Difficult Run is today almost exactly as it was when Webster angled there. Flowing through a woodland country of little value for agriculture, its surroundings have remained wild and picturesque. The native trout have disappeared long since, but a wealthy man who owns the adjacent land stocked it not many years ago with rainbow trout, and these are reported to be multiplying.
The stream is full thirty feet wide in many places and reaches the Potomac through a rocky range of hills in one place forming a beautiful waterfall. It has long been a favorite subject of artists.
The Searchlight
RUBBER MADE IN TEXAS.
Few people know that a plant native to Texas and Mexico has proved capable of producing a high grade rubber, yet a factory has been in operation in Marathon, Texas, for several years. The plant is the wild guayule shrub which grows in the semi-arid land and has heretofore been regarded as an undesirable produce of the soil. Plans are now under way to plant 50,000 acres with this shrub during the coming year.

Hon. Ralph D. Cole, ex-member of congress, says the United States is in war. Candidate Fairbanks says we are not in war. Senator Harding says Candidate Fairbanks does know what war is or words to that effect. Now if some of the G. O. P. statesmen can tell us what war is or is not, they will add to their fame. We know this country is not in war because Colonel Teddy and his "four sons" are not on the firing line.

Hughes says he is in favor of an eight-hour day for labor. He is like the old farmer in Maine. He was in favor of the prohibition law but against enforcement.

Mr. Hughes had a secret conference with a committee headed by Jeremiah O'Leary, president of the American Independence Alliance. Jerry O'Leary is the fellow whom the president requested not to vote for his re-election.

When one reads the speeches of republican orators, one is told that only republicans can run the government satisfactorily — to Wall Street.

The paramount issues which republican orators were so fiercely discussing early in the campaign, have been abandoned. The republican years prior to Wilson's inauguration spellbinders heard from the voters. — from 1897 to 1913 — the republican party was in power, and absolute phrase, the speeches of Roosevelt, lute failed to make provision for the republicans gain power the national defense. To blame the colonel will be secretary of state and present administration for not doing the foreign policy of the in three years what the republicans country. Do voters want this fire-eater in the cabinet?

Leaders of the republican party charge President Wilson with responsibility for our unpreparedness. Roosevelt once posed before the country as a progressive. Four years ago he had much to say concerning the greed of "malefactors of great wealth, the unfitness of the republican party to deal with new problems," and solemnly pledged himself never to "desert the faithful men and women who drew around him in support of the progressive cause." In 1920 he will desert and denounce Hughes just as he did William H. Taft unless he is consulted.

Dick Hyndicks, of Cincinnati, national committeeman, says: "All we need in Ohio is to have the voters informed as to the issues and get out the full republican vote. Why then, does Mr. Hughes persist in evading discussion of the issues?"

Back To the Bread Line If Wilson's Tariff Is Not Repealed

PRESIDENT WILSON: You are boasting to the voters, through your Department of Commerce and Bureau of Labor, what your Administration and Congress have done for American wage-earners in work provided and payrolls increased for them.

One of your Labor Bureau Bulletins tells of the hundreds of thousands of unemployed bread-winners put to work in the latter part of your term.

But it is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that all of these bread-winners had full employment when you took office and lost that employment by reason of the tariff legislation enacted at your dictation.

You know it is a fact that in the fall of 1914 those hundreds of thousands of American wage-earners were out of work because of the tariff, framed, enacted and put into operation under your personal supervision and at your behest.

It is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that while foreign goods were checked from pouring into our markets by the American tariff system of the Republican party, this country bought abroad in 1912, $581,000,000 less goods than it sold abroad.

It is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that in the first six months of 1913, during four months of which you were President, but during all of which the Republican tariff was still in operation, our imports were $286,000,000 lower than our exports.

It is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that in the whole year of 1913, during ten months of which you were President, but during only three months of which your tariff was in operation, our imports were $691,000,000 lower than our exports.

But it is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that in the first six months of 1914, with your tariff in operation all those months, this country followed the deadly path of larger and larger imports, driving American industries out of business and American wage-earners out of work, in favor of foreign capital and foreign labor.

It is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that in January 1913, under the Republican tariff, we sold abroad, $64,000,00 more than we bought abroad; but in January 1914, under your tariff, only $49,000,000 more.

That in February 1913, under the Republican tariff, we sold abroad $44,000,000 more than we bought abroad, but in February 1914, under your tariff, only $25,000,000.

That in March 1913, under the Republican tariff, we sold abroad $31,000,000 more than we bought abroad, but in March 1914, under your tariff, only $4,900,000.

That in April 1913, under the Republican tariff, we sold abroad $53,000,000 more than we bought abroad, but in April 1914, under your tariff, we bought abroad $11,000,000 more than we sold abroad.

It is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that in the five months from April to August 1913, inclusive, under the Republican tariff, we sold abroad $218,000,000 more than we bought abroad, but in the corresponding months of 1914, under your tariff, we bought abroad $39,000,000 more than we sold abroad.

It is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that your tariff ceased to work havoc with American industries and business and to impoverish American labor only when the war came to dam off, at the source abroad, those cheap labor imports which you had allowed to flood our markets.

It is a fact, and you know it is a fact, that it was the war which put our wage-earners back to work, in spite of your tariff, but that the moment the war stops thousands of munition plants will go out of business and hundreds of thousands of wage-earners employed in them will go off their payrolls.

And more,—that many other industries now supported by the day and night activity of our munition plants and by the vast earning power of the wage-earners in them will be compelled to close down in part or in whole.

Then when those hundreds of thousands of our own wage-earners suddenly lose their employment and the twelve to twenty million wage-earners of the Old World now engaged in war return to their normal occupations, and their surplus products of peace are allowed to flood into this country again as they were flooding in until the outbreak of the war, the work of ruining American industries, which was begun by your tariff before the war, must be completed after the war; the American wage-earners put into the bread-line by your tariff but taken out by the war, must, with peace restored, go back into that bread-line of your making in 1914.

Therefore, President Wilson, when you ask American wage-earners to vote, on November 7th, for your tariff, you ask them to vote to live in a Fool's Paradise of war trade for mere months or weeks, only to be plunged by that tariff immediately afterward back into pauperism and the bread line.

Matrimonial Fables
The Woman Who Won Praise From Her Husband and How She Did It.
ONCE UPON a time there was a Married Man who went about boasting his wife as a model of all the virtues.
"I tell you I have some little wife," he was wont to say, "and how I was ever lucky enough to obtain this treasure keeps me guessing."
As an economist, she makes the late lamented Betty Green look like a waster and a spender. She is not one of those foolish wives who blow in their husband's hard-earned money on wicked extravagance, but, on the contrary, she makes everyone of my little old iron men work overtime for her, as she chooses the elusive bargain to its lair and captures it. Everything we have got in our house was marked down from $1.00 to $0.99, and through her thrift I should doubtless some day enter the millionaire class.
"Nor is her management her only good quality," the man would continue: "As a wife and mother she would take the blue ribbon in any family contest. She never considers herself when the children and I are concerned, and the sacrifices she makes on the altar of her home entitle her to rank among the female martyrs."
"She is also a marvel as a cook, and the only reason that we have corned beef and cabbage for dinner three times a week is because simple food is so much better for the digestion. It is true that we have much delicatessen stuff on the table, but that is because my wife has figured it out that such food can be bought ready cooked cheaper than it can be prepared at home."
Still More Praise.
"Although my wife is such a good manager and so domestic, she is not one of those women who always stay in the house, and who smell of the kitchen and sterilized baby food, for she finds time to attend the theatre, go to bridge parties nearly every day, and drop in to tea dances. She considers that it is her sacred duty to do these things so she may bring fresh interests home with her to entertain me."
Upon hearing these words all of the other married men would be filled with bitter regret that they did not get this paragon, but it made the women very sore, and at last one of them who had the courage of her curiosity went to the wife and thus addressed her:
"Tell us," she said to the woman, "what charm you have used to hypnotize your husband into always singing your praises, while our husbands do nothing but knock our faults, for we do not perceive that when it comes to a display of domestic virtues that you have anything on the balance of us."
"My recipe," replied the wife, "is a very simple one. I merely always call my husband's attention to my virtues and keep silent about my weaknesses, whereas you tell your husband about your mistakes, and put the soft pedal on your achievements."
"Thus, when I save 50 cents I beat upon the drums to celebrate it, but when I get bunned out of five dollars, I do not mention it. When I sew a button on my husband's shirt, I tell him how sweet it is of me to do it, and he is filled with gratitude, but I blame it on the laundry when he gets hold of one with no buttons on it. Also I impress it on his mind that everything I do I do for his sake, and this simple expedient enables me to always do as I please. Follow these rules and you will change your husband from a critic into a claque."
Moral: This fable teaches that a wife writes her own price tag.

PRactical Beauty.
PERHAPS this excerpt doesn't seem at first to belong to a column devoted to little sermons but in fact it is a little sermon if you read between the lines.
"My dining room is on the north side of my house," observed a housekeeper; "and although I painted the woodwork white and had the walls papered a pale tan, it always looked cold and bleak in the morning, somehow. It was light, but it was not bright. Then it occurred to me to produce artificial sunshine in that room! First of all, I relentlessly put away in the storeroom the dark chairs which lent such a somber appearance, and in their place I put old-fashioned Windsor chairs, which I got unpainted and gave a coat of soft yellow, with a double narrow line of deep blue around back and seat. I hung warm yellow cheese-cloth curtains at the windows—they hang in lovely soft folds—and in one window I placed a Chinese jar of deep orange, with a branch of hemlock in it, which was beautifully decorative against the light. Then I indulged in a set of breakfast china in pale yellow crackle ware, not expensive but effective, and always managed to have some yellow flowers in the center of the table. Just now the marigolds provide artificial sunshine a-plenty; later on come the chrysanthemums, through the winter one can have sprays of orange bittersweet or red berries, and with early spring come the jonquils. There's always sunshine in my north dining room now; and I have tried to add to the picture by wearing at breakfast time a smock of deep yellow linen, smocked in a soft old blue. It all helps, and every member of the family exclaims, now and then:
"This is such a cheerful dining room in the morning, isn't it!"

THE WOOD TRAIL.
Down between the branches drops a low, soft wind.
Where the narrow trail begins there start I.
Yellow sun and shadow are spinning gold behind.
Long brakes are clutching as my knees brush by.
Pungent breathe the balsams by the stream's low bank.
Rotting wood and violets lie side by side.
Glow the scarlet fungus through the alder ranks,
Burning like a light on a still, green tide
Hilltops bid me linger where the winds run cool,
Hollows hold my feet in the deep, black loam,
But marking purple shadows in the purring pool.
I lift my silent feet on the long trail home.

102 YEARS OLD: TO VOTE FOR 36TH PRESIDENT.
DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 31.—Marcus Kolf, 102 years old, hopes to cast his 21st straight democratic vote for president on November 7. He cast his first vote in 1836, when Andrew Jackson was the candidate.
Kolf is a survivor of four wars. He suffered a crippled arm in the California, stopped a minnie ball in the Texas war, went through the Mexican war without being wounded, then was put out in the Civil war after he had been a soldier for 15 years and 4 months. He now is a member of the old soldiers' home here. He never was married. He says he is afraid of domestic strife.

as beads, tinsel, tiny bows of ribbon, fancy buttons, ruchings and bits of colorful embroidery. One white Georgette collar has a fringe of silver beads and another collar of broadcloth has a fringe of the same material, finely slashed to form the long fringe. An odd novelty is a collar of white satin which has epaulettes over the shoulders, and hem-stitched straps down the back, holding in a pleated collar of crepe trimmed with polka dots in V shape through the center. The finish is picot edge throughout. Combinations of taffeta and broadcloth, are seen. Many of the collars are capelike in effect, one of dull blue taffeta being lined with white silk.

The utilitarian umbrella is taking unto itself all sorts of little beautifying touches nowadays. The sober black silk cover is giving way to covers which should, to be correct, match the costume as carefully as do the hat and gloves. Dark rich silks, some of them changeable with black or some other dark shade, are shown in pretty variety. The handles are growing more elaborate, too. The plain wooden handle which was in such good form last season is being succeeded by simply carved wood, ivory or malacca. Silver handles are seen a great deal, and so are handles showing colored enamels. Rings or loops with which to fasten the umbrella to the wrist are attached to many of the handles. Sometimes this ring is of silver or jade, sometimes of leather, and often, as customary, of silk to match the cover. Umbrellas are much shorter than they were a season or two ago. They dangle comfortably at the wrist without hitting the ground.

stand out as one of the greatest achievements of his administration.

He praised President Wilson for keeping the country out of the European war, saying, "If there had been a Woodrow Wilson at the head of the European nations on the first day of August, 1914, there would have been no war." He said that no matter whether we agreed or not with the course the president had taken, we all agreed with the results he has accomplished. "Woodrow Wilson has taken the people into his confidence; they know what he has done; he has played his cards on the table, face upwards. Mr. Hughes has been criticizing the president, but does anyone know what he would have done? He has not told the people what course he would have taken, and if he had told us, how do we know he would have accomplished the same results? He has played his cards under the table, save and accept a few he has up his sleeves."

He ridiculed Roosevelt's criticism of Wilson, referring to him as "Teddy the Terrible." He said: "If Roosevelt wants to go to war, let him go; no one is holding him."

He contrasted conditions in Europe with those in America, and said that he "preferred the Wilson way to the Roosevelt way."

Cox waded into the Willis administration with an axe, a pruning hook and a scythe, cutting to pieces the claims of the Ada schoolmaster to another term in the state house. Taking up one by one the charges made by the governor two years ago, he showed where the state of Ohio had been made the trusting dupe of misrepresentation and falsehood as summarized in Harvey C. Garber's now famous "little red book."

But it was the abuse of the workman's compensation act which furnished the scrappy Daytonian with his choicest shafts of wit and sarcasm, two Lima cases, at the locomotive plant, being among the instances he cited. In fact, in his address here last night Cox launched his bitterest attack on the alleged efforts of Frank B. Willis to break down the workman's compensation law. The two specific cases mentioned were those recently referred to in his speech at Defiance and concern men who are employed by the Lima corporation.

"In both the instances," former Governor Cox said, "these men have been shamefully treated. They have been denied their rights under the workman's compensation law. They have been refused proper treatment. The state is absolutely ignoring their cases, and it is doing so under the direct dictation of Frank B. Willis. "This Wilson feeling is not a landslide—it is an epidemic—and I feel confident the men here in the Lima locomotive works are going to stand by the national and state tickets. They have been wronged to such an extent that they know republicanism is not in their defense."

Mr. Cox spoke in part as follows: "In the campaign of 1914, Mr. Willis developed an obsession on an alleged deficit in the treasury, which everybody now knows did not exist, but he talked himself into believing it."

"In this campaign he has run to seed on two things, and they are practically all he has talked about, namely, the conduct of the state banking department, and the saving in some of the state departments."

"Now that he has based his whole contention on these two details the facts can be stated in a few words. Under the last democratic administration a law was passed compelling every private bank to be chartered; at the same time it was subjected to examination by the state banking department. At least a dozen states have followed the Ohio plan since. A great many of these private banks which had been loosely run were insolvent and soon after the law became operative went into liquidation. In fact, while there were more banks closed in the same length of time than in any previous period of Ohio's history, the procedure was a wholesome and cleansing process, exactly the same that other states experienced. It involved expense, but it was infinitesimal compared to the amount of money that was saved to depositors in the state, and to the great good which resulted from placing all of the banking business in Ohio on a firm basis."

"The republican committee issued a campaign pamphlet on the banking department, and after it was published it was compelled to make apology to Mr. William Shaffer, the liquidating agent, because it had carried against him a flagrant and obvious libel. Mr. Willis' second obsession, the saving of money in departments, is so weak that it hardly needs attention. He saved money in the department of public works because he makes comparison with the year when flood damage on reservoirs had to be repaid. The banking department he compares with the year when the work was heavier than at any other time in its history. In some few departments he probably effected economies, but it was due to conditions, just as we have stated. The fact remains, however, that his total cost was $1,000,000 more per year than under the last democratic administration, and his increases were in 21 departments of the state."

"The people of the state are so sickened with the last two years of its state governmental history that continuous reference to it cannot but be ungracious. To follow Mr. Willis' figures and contentions would be an idle waste of time. In charity I am willing to admit that what he says is probably not prompted by wilful deception, but is due to a pathetic irresponsibility. The great opportunities for progressive government under our new constitution he has never sensed. The chance to carry the work forward he doesn't realize. The people, fully appreciative of what can be done in the state, are looking to the prospects of the future in happy contemplation rather than casting their heads over their shoulders and looking upon the last two years of governmental nightmare."

"I figure not less than a hundred thousand."

This is Senator Pomerene's estimate of the Wilson majority which Ohio will roll up next Tuesday, expressed across the table while the senator, Governor Cox and a party of friends were dining at the Elks' home.

"It's going to be a landslide. I never saw the democrats so enthusiastic, and the republicans are whistling to keep up their courage," he added.

"I have never seen a more inspiring campaign. In 1910, when Judson Harmon, running for his second term, got his great majority of 100,377, those who traveled the state met only an occasional republican who was going to vote the democratic ticket. This year I am meeting five times as many as I did in 1910. I wonder what the Wilson vote will be if the rule of proportion holds now as it did then?"

The senator left this morning for Kenton and Orrville, while Cox is touring Putnam county today under the guidance of his opponent in the August primaries, "Put" Sandles.

ORPHEUM PRESENTS PRETTY GIRLS IN MUSICAL COMEDY

Hawaiian Music Also Is a Feature of Good Vaudeville Show.

Harry Sawyer presents "The Fortune Seekers," a miniature musical comedy as the headline at the Orpheum this week. It has a chorus of pretty girls that are a delight to see. Their dancing is especially graceful and they exhibit some unique costumes. The scene is laid in Venice where a famous Italian musician has recently died, leaving a fortune to his son and daughter. The daughter is dead and the son cannot be located so several fortune hunters arrive to claim the legacy. All kinds of complications arise before the tangle is finally straightened out. Helen Lane has a very pleasing voice and her songs were well received.

Naino, a Hawaiian musician, is really the feature of the bill. Most of his music has that weird strain running through it, suggestive of Hawaiian music, which touches everyone and makes them realize what good music really is. He was called back again and again, and his last encore, Aloha-Aoe was splendid.

The Leap Year Girls a boarding school comedy kept everyone laughing from start to finish. Three young misses set out to capture a man and they do. They conceive a very novel plan for making the acquaintance of a young doctor and carry it out with great success, only the doctor doesn't happen to be a doctor of human anatomy, to their great surprise.

The Blues open the bill with a comedy trampolene and they have some very good stunts. Will Davis, the different kind of comedian, has a comedy that did not take well with the audience as it is rather ancient. It is a fine bill from start to finish and played to full houses at both performances last night.

JACKSON GRANGE STARS IN "BRAND OF CAIN."

"Black Dick" or "The Brand of Cain," a four-act drama, will be produced on Wednesday evening at Beaverdam. Members of Jackson Grange, who have appeared to such splendid advantage previously in plays of this kind, will interpret the act. The play is full of fun and pathos and will be interesting to all who attend.

The same cast will present the play at Alger on Thursday evening and at Harrod on Saturday evening.

ARTIST IS HELD FOR BIG COUNTERFEITING

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Oct. 31.—H. R. Wilken, 28, a former New York artist, is held by federal secret service men today on charges that he has obtained $50,000 in the last three years by counterfeiting. Wilken, heretofore unknown as a criminal, has confessed, the agents say.

Wilken is charged with counterfeiting a $5 note which was so good that it defied detection for months, its one big flaw being that it was slightly shorter than the real note; a $1 bill, and more recently a $10 federal reserve note. Wilken's complete plant was seized.

HENRY FORD BEGINS PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN FOR THE PRESIDENT

He Will Urge Wilson's Re-election in 500 Newspapers of Nation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The first of Henry Ford's advertisements urging the re-election of President Wilson will appear in a few days. The advertisements will be placed in 500 papers. They will be signed by Mr. Ford and be devoted to the achievements of President Wilson's administration and the reasons why it should not be discontinued.

The first ad will take up half a page. It is headed "Humanity and Your Vote." A few of Mr. Ford's most emphatic paragraphs read: "He is entitled to be rewarded for his great service to mankind, and the only way we can reward him is by giving him the opportunity to be of still greater service."

"Although nominally a republican all of my life, I am for Wilson, and urge my fellow citizens to stand for him, because he has kept us out of war and has done much to bring about the remarkable prosperity, which we enjoy, and because Wall street is against him."

"We should guard against Wall street influences again securing control of our government. They have been rooted out during the last four years, and are working hard to get back."

"All other great nations are being consumed and destroyed but we have peace with honor, and our boys are at home."

"Special interests are demanding and the president is being criticised with many words, but stripped of all unnecessary words, their real complaint is that he has not plunged the country into war for their profits."

"Great Prosperity covers the land as never before; legitimate enterprise is assured a proper reward. There are no bread lines, and everybody is assured a proper reward. Our people are contented, prosperous and happy. Why should we make a change?"

"I am for Wilson because he has consumed to be passed a large number of wise and humane laws, most of which had been promised by the politicians of both parties for many years without fulfillment. Not one class has been favored, no one disregarded. He has served the United States as a whole."

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindly assistance and sympathy and floral offerings; the Rev. Mr. Holland and the Rev. FAUROT—"THE ONLY GIRL."
The increasing tendency to visit the theater for relaxation has brought unusual prosperity to musical comedies. Of these many frolicsome entertainments, however, none have enjoyed more liberal patronage than has been given "The Only Girl," which will be seen here at the Faurot on Friday night.

"The Only Girl," with the lively melodies of Victor Herbert set to a charming story by Henry Blossom, was first produced two years ago in New York, and found popularity for an entire season at the Lyric theater, with the same artists to be seen here Friday night. It is seldom indeed that musical comedy so deservedly survives into succeeding years with the same grace as has "The Only Girl."

The company is the original one and includes many well known players in Laura Arnold, Olga Rolier, Adele Hassen, Earlton Sitgreaves, Nettie Velle, Ernest Torrence, Alfred Fisher, Emanuel A. Turner, Richard Bartlett, Frank Coombs and others.

THE FAUROT'S PICTURES.

"The Storm," a new Laskey photograph in which the popular Blanche Sweet has the leading role, is the new Paramount picture at the Faurot today. Miss Sweet has an unusual role—that of the daughter of a retired old professor who is absorbed in his books and allows his daughter to run at will in the Maine woods. Theodore Roberts has the part of the absent-minded old bookworm and he asserts that this character is an exact imitation of a friend of his in the east—the most studious and absent minded man in the world. The family has to lead him from his desk to his dining table or he would forget to eat. He carries an old time-piece which to the knowledge of the family has not been running for at least five years. While thinking out some perplexing problem he will sit and wind this watch by the hour. Mr. Roberts used to delight in watching the old professor, but this is the first time he has had an opportunity to project him on the screen. In this most unusual photograph, with Miss Sweet, Mr. Roberts and a typical Laskey cast doing splendid work, the producer has added his customary fine settings and superb photography. The feature is accompanied by Burton Holmes' "In Old Ireland" and a new edition of the Pathe News. Tonight's performance of "The Storm" will start at 6:15, 8 and 9:25, giving the Faurot patrons an opportunity to see this feature in its entirety both before and after the Halloween parade.

V. C. FOR BRITON
WHO DISARMED 102

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Private Thomas Jones of the Cheshire regiment has just been awarded the Victoria Cross for an almost incredible act. According to the official gazette, he was with his company consolidating the defenses of the front of a village. Noticing an enemy sniper 200 yards away, he went out after him, though one bullet went through his helmet and another through his coat. He returned the sniper's fire and killed him. The gazette continues:

"Then he saw two more of the enemy firing at him, although they displayed the white flag. Both of these he also shot, and reaching an enemy trench found several occupied dugouts. Single handed he disarmed 102 of the enemy, including three or four officers, and marched them back to our lines through a heavy barrage. He had been warned of the misuse of the white flag by the enemy but insisted upon going out."

COLLEGE FOR HOBOES TO OPEN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The first term of the college for hoboes, which is sponsored by James Eads How, St. Louis "millionaire hobo", will open here next week. Eventually $30,000 will be spent toward an endowment fund. For the winter $1,500 is available and a building now is being sought.

The term hobo is to be discarded in favor of "migratory unskilled laborers" and the college is planned to give a sort of postgraduate course to the college of hard knocks. Sanitation and moral values, organization of the wanderers, vagrancy laws and the rudiments of economics are to comprise the curriculum.

McGraw's Nerves Reach Snapping Point in Battle CHARGES UNCORKED

High Strung Temperment Causes Scrap- py Manager to Cool in Battle But Later Results in Relapse.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—"Those big journey, McGraw was cool, con- who know John McGraw best, do not take seriously his charges that him; nothing caused him to lose his the Giants threw the final series of the year to the Dodgers, they look upon McGraw's utterances merely as a sort of exhaust for his shattered nervous system.

So asserts William Chase Temple, donor of the famous Temple Cup, and a student of the diamond game for 40 years.

"McGraw is a nervous, highly strung fellow, with wonderful courage and coolness in the fiercest of the fighting, but with a tempera- ment that makes him go to pieces absolutely after the crisis is over," said Temple. "I first came to know McGraw more than 22 years ago, and the study of his career since then reveals the same characteris- tics.

"Back in 1894 the Boston and Baltimore teams rushed to the wire almost nose and nose. Upon the last game of the year depended the pen- nant. Boston got away in the lead and held it until the ninth. Finally the Baltimore club filled the bases in the final inning, with two men out. A hit meant the pennant for Baltimore; failure spelled its loss.

McGraw Collapsed After Victory.
"And it was John McGraw's turn at bat. Confidently, swaggeringly, he walked to the plate, with a sneer upon his face. In all that ball park, John McGraw, facing the greatest task of his career up to that time, was the coolest and calmest. He seemed like an icicle.

"The ball was served up to him McGraw looked it over and then let it slip by. The next one came up and McGraw, timing his swing per- fectly, shot it on a line over the in- field for the hit that won the game—and the pennant of 1894—for his club.

"Immediately after the game was over, McGraw rushed into the club- house ahead of his mates. When they arrived there they found him in a far corner in tears. McGraw was crying in hysteria; babbling his tempera- ment had enabled him to face the strain—and bravely. But as soon as the tension had snapped, John McGraw collapsed.

"That is typical of McGraw, and that incident of more than a score of years ago explains to many of the old timers why McGraw made charges that seemed sensational at the time. While the Giants were breezing along on their record-mak-

McGraw Couldn't Understand.

"With the severing of the string, McGraw's nervous system, no doubt, became unhinged. And when the Giants, after steamrolling every foe over a sweep of nearly one month, went to Brooklyn and put up such a miserable exhibition, the sight of it was more than McGraw could bear. He couldn't understand at the time that the let-down of his men after their great record was but natural. He came to regard them as a peer- less combination; as a team that could not play anything other than superb base ball whenever it tried.

"After the Giants had won about 10 games during their spring streak of 17 in a row, I wired McGraw at Cincinnati. I pointed out to him that it wasn't good for a ball club to win too many in a row—that the let-down afterward would work havoc with the team for a while. What I then predicted came true. The Giants cracked in about 21 dif- ferent places after they had won four 17 straight.

Winning Streaks Hurt Team.
"That has been the case all through base ball history. I have been interested in the game in a vital way for something like 40 years. In all that time I never have seen any club winning a big string of games consecutively without ship- ping badly for some time after- ward. That has been proven this season, not merely in the case of the Giants, but by other clubs.

"The St. Louis Browns won quite a few games in a row during mid- season and got within striking dis- tance of the pennant. Then their string was broken and somehow or other, the Browns couldn't get back into stride again. The Red Sox achieved consecutive victories along in August and seemed to have clinched the pennant. Their march was halted by a defeat and for two or three weeks afterward they did little better than flounder along.

"Had McGraw realized this, the chances are that he never would have broken out with his strange, and unreasonable sounding charges. It hadn't been in a highly nervous state he could have looked at things squarely. But McGraw was not in

MAJOR CORNELIUS VANDERBILT

Major Cornelius Vanderbilt.

MCALLEN, Tex.—Major Cor- nelius Vanderbilt, inspector- gen- eral of the New York division, attached to the staff of General John F. O'Ryan, is being spoken today for promotion to the lieuten- ant-colonelcy of the first field artillery. Major Vander- bilt is in New York on leave and consequently his views upon the subject could not be obtained.

It is said that Col. H. H. Rogers, who recently resigned from the first field artillery, has recommended Lieutenant-Col- onel Merritt Smith for command of that organization and has suggested Major Vanderbilt as second in command. It Major Vanderbilt goes to the field artillery that regiment will lose nothing on the score of wealthy patronage any mental condition that would per- mit him to analyze matters. All he could see was that his ball team, which had gone day after day with- out hobbling was piling up errors one after the other. That the men who had been smashing the fences had become suddenly impotent with the bat; that the pitchers who had been hurling in wonderful fashion sud- denly "cracked."

"And so John McGraw driven by his shattered nervousness, rushed from the field and uttered charges against his men, charges that he probably never meant; charges of the kind that if someone else would have made them would have en- raged him to a point where he would have loaded himself with a few how- itzers and gone man-hunting."

finest things to keep the boys on the border in condition are the "setting up" exercises recently adopted by the army. In Mel's opinion those exercises as much tend to harden the men as the marches and drilling to which they are put regularly as part of the military discipline.

NEWS FROM CAMP.

NEW HAVEN—Tad Jones today made several important changes in the Yale line-up in preparation for the hard Colgate game Saturday. Jim Braden, a great linesmasher, was back at fullback. Hutchinson, who played in the backfield last week has been re-assigned to center and Callahan no doubt will be at guard in place of Galt.

ITHACA—The Cornellians today are much chastened. The latter critics as doled out to them by Al Sharpe is the cause. The Red and White players, stung under the lash, have gone back at training work determined to win every game remaining on its schedule and thus atone for its defeat by Harvard Sat- urday.

PITTSBURGH—The Panthers will have a fairly easy time of it the rest of the week. Their game Saturday against Allegheny is a comparatively easy one, and Glen Warner won't risk injury to his men by hard scrim- mage.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Harvard's elation over the Cornell victory was decreased a bit today when it was learned that Horween may be lost to the Crimson cause for a week or two. The big fullback who is the team's best backer was hurt in Sat- urday's clash.

PRINCETON, N. J. — Coach Speedy Rush is trying out Comey at quarterback. The work Saturday of Eddy and Ames was not extreme- ly pleasing to the Tiger tutor and he may start Comey in the next game.

Fight Declared Draw.

WAUKESHA, Wis., Oct. 31.—Jack Casey of Philadelphia and George Adams of Chicago, 116-pounders, fought a fierce draw here last night.

WAUGH WINS.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 31.—Bobby Waugh of Fort Worth out- classed Ernest Lucien, a local light- weight, so badly that the latter's sec- onds threw up the sponge in the tenth round of a scheduled 20-round bout last night.

TOWN

One Tenth Lima's Size

CITED AS EXAMPLE OF MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Did you ever hear of Brookings, South Dakota?

It's mayor admits that it has a total pop- ulation of 4,000.

Greater Brookings must be the star of the northwest, if that's so.

This community is the example cited by the municipal ownership advocates as the one in which the telephone system is owned and operated by the city. A town one- tenth the size of Lima, located out on the prairie and boasting "a large up-to-date switchboard," is presented as an example for Lima to follow.

Lima discarded switchboards some time ago. The automanual system lessens the time required for operating calls and re- duces the labor and fatigue of the employees.

The mayor says at the outset that the plant was purchased at twice the value of the stock. It now has on hand about $16,000. That's a little more than the Lima company spent for taxes last year.

Municipal ownership advocates argue that if Greater Brookings with 4,000 can run a telephone plant, Lima with 45,000 certainly can. That sort of logic is not based on actual experience, for time has shown that municipal ownership is far more liable to work out successfully in the small place than in the big one. If you don't realize that, compare the water works plants of the little villages with the scandals in great centers of the country. Ever hear of the New York Croton aquaduct steal, or the Phila- delphia gas ring?

In a small place where every man knows every other man, there is no chance for in- efficiency or graft, favoritism or political control. In the larger places there is ample opportunity.

Lima is growing.

FEDERAL ATTORNEY FINDS EVIDENCE OF ELECTION FRAUDS

Wholesale Colonization of Negroes Carried on Along the Ohio River.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Oct. 31.—Charles A. Karch, United States district attorney, has issued a signed statement charging wholesale negro colonization in doubtful states in order to carry them for Charles E. Hughes.

The statement, in part, follows: "My department has substantial information to the effect that there is afoot a systematic scheme to defraud the election in November 7. This scheme is apparently very comprehensive, involving persons of high and low position in the organization of certain of the major political parties, and having devious ramifications throughout the eastern half of the United States. Nearly all the criminal methods of corrupting an election known in political manipulations appear in the background of this alleged undertaking on the part of unscrupulous politicians to compel the election of a president of the United States and a coterie of congressmen (including this district) against the judgment of the honest electorate.

"The scheme involves a plan of colonizing southern negroes in the doubtful states, including Illinois. Under the pretense of large demands for labor, hundreds of colored men are induced to come into these states, only to be informed that they could not be immediately used, but to find a residence and be subject to further directions. Pleasure excursions from southern states to northern points, limited exclusively to colored people, have been arranged for, figuring upon the law of averages that hundreds of these excursionists become stranded or otherwise elect to remain in northern states.

"It is against experience and the very nature of things to have excursions from the south to the north at this season of the year, when the reverse is usually the order. It has been discovered that from 500 to 600 negroes of both sexes remained in this county alone from the excursion last week over the Mobile Ohio from Tuscaloosa, Ala., which I am informed contained 2,000 passengers. From all points along this and other southern roads come complaints that strange colored people are presenting themselves for registration, and in many instances were permitted to register through some connivance on the part of the election officials and political workers.

"We know that immense corruption funds have been arranged for jointly between certain organizations promoting the election of candidates for governor and president, to be lavishly used in any manner calculated to produce the desired results. Successful voters, particularly the colored population, will be approached with bribe money. Judges and clerks of election, in a few instances, have been instructed to go the limit to suppress lawfully cast votes for the opposition candidates. The pay-off stations in some of the precincts are being arranged for, and the go-between ward-healers have been engaged. Their names and identities are known. In fact, the stage is completely set, and everything is ready for the performance.

"In view of this information, I, as a public official, will be criminally derelict to permit the execution of this colossal scheme without invoking all the powers at my command to thwart it; and I hereby serve notice that the full authority and jurisdiction of the federal court will be employed in this judicial district to insure an absolutely honest election.

Agents from the department of justice have been carrying on investigations in East St. Louis for weeks. The arrest of negroes began yesterday.

Visiting Nurse Work Makes Candid Appeal For Public Support

To pay the salaries of Lima's two instructive visiting nurses the coming year, today volunteer workers started all over the city to distribute white envelopes in which every family is asked to make a donation to the cause. On the envelope the Maltese cross, outlined in red, is shown.

As Lima's two nurses go about over the city in their work, each wears a cross in a bite on her arm, as shown in the illustration. A house-to-house canvassing made by the workers is probably the largest of the kind in the city. With these volunteer workers, the members of the association are distributing the envelopes. In gathering them up, more than $200 was saved in postage. Here is the envelope, containing pledges and into which money may be placed, have been mailed.

The city has been divided into 37 precincts and a captain is placed at the head of each precinct. Under her will be workers, who will assist in the distribution of the envelopes. It is probable all the envelopes, containing pledges and money, will be gathered up by Saturday, which will be "Banner day," the closing of the campaign. It is hoped the contributions will be sufficiently large that a third nurse may be employed, to care for cases which are contagious in their nature. Contributions may be sent direct to Miss Katherine Reilly, secretary-treasurer of the association, No. 129 North Baxter street, Lima.

Bre'er Rabbit will be on his guard after 12 o'clock tonight, as from then on until January 1, inclusive, open season is declared on this denizen of the field and forest. Local nimrods predict one of the best seasons for a number of years. Yesterday, 96 persons took out bits of paper entitling them to hunt the little cottontail and according to the clerks at the court and who dispense the licenses, hunt seekers today were more frequent and numerous than yesterday.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is cataract. Cataract being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Cataract Medicine is taken internally and acts upon the blood and the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and causing nature to do its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Cataract Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
